

Amplifying the Voices of RP's Women Radiologists

National Women Physicians Day, celebrated annually on February 3, marks the birthday of the first female doctor in the United States, Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell.

Women radiologists at Radiology Partners (RP) are shaping the future of radiology through their expertise, leadership and innovation. On this National Women Physicians Day – and every day – we honor their resilience, achievements and the critical role of representation in fostering inclusivity, driving innovation and advancing patient care.

With this in mind, we are recognizing some of the amazing women physicians at RP who inspire us every day in their work. By amplifying their voices, we celebrate their transformative impact on healthcare and their role in inspiring the next generation of physicians to break barriers and lead progress.

[toggles accordion="true"] [toggle title="Dr. Jennifer Hill" color="Accent-Color" id="b1"]

“As a female leader in radiology, I’ve learned the importance of getting involved and finding mentors who appreciate what you bring to the table. You might face some obstacles, but don't let that discourage you. RP is very supportive. During meetings, make sure to sit at the table and speak up—your perspective is valuable and can make a difference. Over time, you'll see that your voice matters. So, women, make sure to take your place at the table.”

Read Why RP? A Q&A with Dr. Jennifer Hill.

[/toggle] [toggle title="Dr. Anisha Martin" color="Accent-Color" id="b2"]

“Radiology, specifically interventional radiology, allows me to have a hand in almost every part of the body and disease process while interacting with every type of subspecialty and physician, and IR allows me to keep up with the surgical life I was drawn to initially. I carry this message to other female physicians who may be interested in IR, and I help advance this important work through my involvement in Women in SIR and other forums that allow me to open doors for other female radiologists.”

Read Why RP? A Q&A with Dr. Anisha Martin.

[/toggle] [toggle title="Dr. Susan O'Horo" color="Accent-Color" id="b3"]

“Few women were represented when I began my career in radiology, particularly in interventional radiology, and mentorship opportunities were scarce amidst prevalent biases. However, I've witnessed significant positive changes as more women enter various radiology specialties. Today, women in IR are breaking barriers, leading research, innovating techniques and advocating for diversity.”

Read Why RP? A Q&A with Dr. Susan O'Horo.

[/toggle] [toggle title="Dr. Megan Woughter" color="Accent-Color" id="b4"]

“One of the things I loved about breast imaging and one of the things that drew me to it – in addition to everything else – was the fact that it’s clinic hours. I don’t have call, and I don’t work nights or weekends. I’m home with my kids on those days. This is in addition to loving the work, so it’s a win-win for me.”

Read Why RP? A Q&A with Dr. Meghan Woughter.

[/toggle] [/toggles]

Join the conversation: We cannot list all the women physicians who inspire us, but we want to know who inspires you. Let us know on X, LinkedIn and Instagram!

Radiology Partners is a leading physician-led and physician-owned radiology practice in the U.S. Learn more about our mission, values and practice principles at RadPartners.com. For the latest news from RP, follow along our blog and on Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram and YouTube.